At Coach, every one of our products is the result of individual craftspeople using their skills to complete a specific job.

One of the responsibilities of our workers is to stitch the buckle portion of our adjustable shoulder straps. They sew with precision, making sure the brass hardware can move freely. The keeper is adequately spacious and ensures that the strap will withstand the wear of day-to-day use.

It is work done with pride . . . work that is an integral part of the Coach tradition.
